Jenga Inducted into the National Toy Hall of Fame

05 Nov, 2020

Today, the Strong Museum announced that Jenga has been officially inducted into their National Toy Hall of Fame.

Leslie Scott, game designer and author, developed the original JENGA® Classic game from a wood block stacking game her family had created in Ghana in the 1970s. JENGA® was introduced in January 1983 at London Toy Fair, and then the famous Harrod's department store. JENGA® was launched in North America in 1986, and has since become an international game icon.

The National Toy Hall of Fame® at The Strong, established in 1998, recognizes toys that have inspired creative play and enjoyed popularity over a sustained period. Each year, the prestigious hall inducts new honorees and showcases both new and historic versions of classic toys beloved by generations.

*Jenga is a registered trademark of Pokonobe Associates.

