Hasbro is happy to announce that Tanya Thompson, Senior Director Inventor Relations, has been awarded Inventor Relations Executive of the Year by Mojo Nation at their annual Play Creators Awards.

Each year, this event recognizes the biggest innovators within the Toy & Game community. This award celebrates figures working in Inventor Relations who have excelled over the past 12 months.

Jared Wade, SVP of Design Innovation & Inventor Relations said, "Tanya is one of the best known and respected Inventor Relations professionals in the industry, especially in the Games category. Since joining Hasbro over five years ago, Tanya has grown our connections within the gaming community and drawn in a growing number of concepts year over year resulting in incremental growth from inventors in that category. She has been instrumental in the development of new talent and expanding the diversity of our inventor base. This award recognizes her significant achievements at Hasbro but also a recognition from the industry for her tremendous impact on inventors, consumers, and gamers around the world."

Hasbro knows that the inventor community is crucial to the play and entertainment industry, and we're proud of our long history of working closely with inventors to bring their innovative ideas to life for fans of all ages.
